Order/collation of the Abakada The collation of letters in the Abakada closely follows those of other Latin-based spelling systems, with the digraph ng inserted after n. The Abakada alphabet was an "indigenized" Latin alphabet adopted for the Tagalog-based Filipino national language in 1940. Please take note that the lessons to be posted are based on Standard Tagalog. I'd like you to watch the video I made after reading the content. Ang ABAKADA Ang abakadang Filipino ay binubuo ng dalawampung (20) titik. By the middle of the century, letters (baybayin) were added and later on reduced due to its ideology which is English that is approximately radical to English alphabet with the release of the Ortograpiyang Pambansa in 2014. When spelling or naming each consonant, its sound is always pronounced with an "a" at the end (e.g. "ba", "ka", etc). It replaced the Pilipino Abakada alphabet of the Fourth Republic. The Abakada alphabet has since been superseded by the modern Filipino alphabet adopted in 1987. In 1939, Lope K. Retrieved 2010-06-22. Dr. José Rizal was one of several proponents (including Trinidad Pardo de Tavera) of reforming the orthographies of the various Philippine languages in the late 19th-century. Santos developed the Ang Balarila ng Wikang Pambansa (The Grammar of the National Language) which, apart from containing grammar rules, contained the 20-letter alphabet designated as Abakada. It was a major change to add these letters and thus modernise the writing system and to preserve sounds that are found in native Philippine languages. In 2013, the Komisyon sa Wikang Filipino released the Ortograpiyang Pambansa ("National Orthography"), a new set of guidelines that resolved phonemic representation problems previously encountered when writing some Philippine languages and dialects. Retrieved from " Good day everyone! Magandang araw sa inyo! Today, I decided to post lessons about Filipino. Following the establishment of the Philippine Commonwealth in 1935, the government selected Tagalog as basis for a "national language" (i.e. Filipino). Like other proponents, he suggested to "indigenize" the alphabet of the Philippine languages by replacing the letters C and Q with K, J. Initially, these reforms were not broadly adopted when they were proposed but gradually became popular into the early 20th century. See also Filipino alphabet Filipino orthography Dambana Baybayin Kawi script Philippine Braille References ^ "Ebolusyon ng Alpabetong Filipino". For three centuries Tagalog was written following, to some extent, the Spanish phonetic and orthographic rules. The modern Filipino alphabet is made up of 28 letters, which includes the entire 26-letter set of the ISO basic Latin alphabet, the Spanish Ñ and the Ng digraph of Tagalog. At present, all languages of the Philippines may be written using the modern Filipino alphabet (officially adopted in 1987), which includes all the letters of the Abakada. This is also the reason for the system's name.
